Will I need a letter of referral from my GP?

If you are paying for your appointment through private medical insurance then you will need to provide a referral letter from a GP. You should check with your insurance provider before attempting to book an appointment without a referral letter.

If you are paying for your appointment yourself and know the name of the specialist you would like to see, or know the specialty you need, you do not need a referral letter.

If you are uncertain of what to do, please speak with our reception staff who will advise you further.
